

Philanthropy and Community Activities

To open up the 21st century with a bright and sunlit society, we believe it is essential to move into a harmonious “symbiosis time”. In AISIN, each employee is involved in various activities to fulfill his or her social responsibility as a good corporate citizen based on the concept “Be With” (live together). We call these “corporate citizenship activities”, and their special division “Sawayaka Fureai Center” (Volunteer Promoting & Health Service Center) is involved in supporting various activities.

We are involved in activities, in particular, in three important fields: social welfare, youth development, and environmental preservation.

AISIN is promoting a further employment of people with disabilities and a work environment where both the disabled and able-bodied people can work with comfort, purpose and satisfaction. We also support the management of NPO's running care center (Kariya city, Japan), mainly by donating and providing physical support so that they can be independent.

We further invite children in the neighborhood to the Toyota Commemorative Museum of Industry and Technology (Nagoya city, Japan), referring to “Mono-zukuri (the art of manufacturing value-added products) Tour,” to have them experience work-study of “mono-zukuri” spirit. We also hold our “Solar Car Class” for elementary school children to try to make a miniature solar-powered car and learn about energy saving. These activities help the children experience wonderful “mono-zukuri” and learn about environmental protection such as saving resources and energy, to pass on the “mono-zukuri” spirit to the next generation.

We also perform environmental protection activities to manage communications with each community, such as holding a nature experience tour inviting elementary school children and people with disabilities, holding parent & child nature hikes and others.
