Theo de Raadt <deraadt@openbsd.org> came up with the idea of using such a mathematical system to generate more random (yet non-repeating) ids to solve the resolver/named problem. But Niels designed the actual system based on the constraints.

Later modified by Damien Miller to wrap the LCG output in a 15-bit permutation generator based on a Luby-Rackoff block cipher. This ensures the output is non-repeating and preserves the MSB twiddle trick, but makes it more resistant to LCG prediction.
